

CFS Department Application for Admission to Graduate Programs

Thank-you for your interest in the graduate program at the University of Tennessee's Department of Child and Family Studies. After applying to the Graduate School, the department requires this completed application, along with a letter of intent, explaining your interests and long-term professional goals and why you would like to pursue graduate studies with us; a current resume or curriculum vitae; and three rating forms from individuals who know you academically and current GRE scores (taken within the last 2 years). The priority deadline for the receipt of these documents, including priority consideration for the support of an assistantship, is January 1st.

Admission and open applications to the CFS Graduate Program remain in effect for one year from the semester for which admission is granted, at which time students must submit new application materials.

Please consult our website for complete application instructions.

FINANCIAL ASSISTANCE: ASSISTANTSHIPS

Financial assistance will be considered only if this portion of the application is completed. Applicants wishing to be evaluated for an assistantship must meet the January 1st application deadline for first consideration for the following academic year. Announcements are typically made in April. Late applications will always be considered in case of vacancies. Prospective students are also encouraged to apply for fellowships and scholarships provided through professional and national associations, and UTK Financial Aid. Review other financial assistance for which you have applied and/or will be receiving, and list experiences that are appropriate to graduate teaching or research. You may also check with the College of Human Ecology Graduate Scholarships (<http://www.he.utk.edu/schol.html>).

[ ] YES, please consider me for a CFS assistantship. Previous financial assistance, research experience and interests, etc: (attach page if necessary)
