GRANT FUNDING

Funded (Submitted)

Exploring the Connection Between Childhood Exposure to Domestic Violence (CEDV), Systemic Inflammation, and Gut Microbiome among College Students: An Exploratory Study

Funder: UTK Office of Research, Innovation, and Economic Development, Human Health and Wellness Research Development Program – FY24 Research Seed Funding
Amount: $3,510
Role: Co-PI (PI: Ji Youn Yoo, Co-PI: Kristen Ravi)
Dates: 12/24-12/26

Funded (Accepted)

Human Health and Wellness Research Development Program: Team Building Activities

Funder: UTK Office of Research, Innovation, and Economic Development

Amount: $3,510

Role: PI (Co-PI: K. Ravi)

Date Received: 5/2023

Adapting a mindful self-compassion program for domestic violence-exposed university students

Funder: UTK CEHHS Office of Research & External Funding, Research-focused Seed/Pilot Projects

Amount: $5,220

Role: PI (Co-PI: K. Ravi)

Dates: November 2022-October 2023

Funded (Completed)

Winning SCORE Project, Phase II

Funder: SCORE Foundation

Amount: $20,000 (split into smaller increments)

Role: Consultant ($2,000; PI: V. Niederhauser)

Dates: August 2018- June 2022

Notes: This grant provided funding to educate residence hall advisors and athletic department personnel, including trainers and coaches, on warning signs of domestic violence exposure and accompanying trauma, as well as trauma-informed approaches to working with students and student-athletes. Pre- and post-test data is also collected. In my role as consultant, I revised workshop content, created role-play and case study activities for the workshop, and work on publications with the PI. In addition, I collaborated with Dr. Kristen Ravi to analyze data and publish manuscripts.

The Child & Family Studies' Learning, Educating, Advocating, and Doing (LEAD) Seminar Series & Furthering our Commitment to Intercultural Humility

Funder: University of Tennessee, Knoxville, College of Education, Health, and Human Sciences

Mechanism: Strategic Initiative Fund

Amount: $5,000

Role: PI

Dates: May,1 2021-June 30, 2022

Strengthening Child and Family Studies' Commitment to Creating a Diverse, Equitable, and Inclusive Community

Funder: University of Tennessee, Knoxville, Office of Diversity and Engagement

Amount: $1,000

Role: PI

Dates: February 25, 2021-June 15, 2021

Assessing Intimate Partner Violence Victims' Help-Seeking Needs and Experiences

Funder: University of Tennessee, Knoxville

Mechanism: 2018 Interdisciplinary Research Seed Program

Amount: $20,916

Role: PI; Co-I: G. Stuart (Psychology), University of Tennessee, Knoxville

Dates: Summer 2018-Fall 2020

Notes: The project's three key objectives are as follows: (1) recruit a sample of intimate partner violence (IPV) victims from the full socioeconomic continuum, as there is scant research on the experiences of IPV victims from the middle to higher end of the continuum; (2) compare these victims' formal help-seeking and legal reporting needs and experiences; and, (3) examine whether various sampling approaches yield different IPV victim subsamples and findings. Findings from this project will be used to leverage external funding for a multi-phase, sequential mixed-methods proposal to the National Science Foundation (NSF; Sociology) in 2020.

Assessing Intimate Partner Violence Victims' Help-Seeking Needs and Experience

Funder: University of Tennessee, Knoxville

Mechanism: 2018-2019 Chancellor's Grant for Faculty Research

Amount: $6,000

Role: PI

Dates: 2018-2019AY

Notes: This grant provided me with a course release during the fall 2018 semester to focus on the 2018 Interdisciplinary Research Seed Program for an NSF submission.

Bystander Program Adoption & Efficacy to Reduce Sexual Violence-Intimate Partner Violence in College Communities

Funder: Centers for Disease Control

Mechanism: Centers for Disease Control National Center for Injury Prevention and Control Cooperative Agreement U01CE002668.

Amount: $1,600,000

Role: Unpaid emerging investigator and mentee (PIs: A. Coker & H. Bush)

Dates: September 2015 – September 2019

Notes: The purpose of this grant is two-fold: 1) To enhance the research productivity and health and wellbeing of junior, gender-based violence researchers through mentorship and fostering of collaborative research teams, 2) To examine public universities approaches to assessing, preventing, and raising awareness around sexual violence by collecting annual, university-wide data (across 20+ campuses). I am actively involved in both aspects of this grant. One tangible example of how my involvement in this grant has influenced my professional development is through the partnership in the #We Too grant submission (unfunded; NIMH.)

The Nature and Impact of Domestic Violence Exposure from the Perspective of Young Adults in Alabama

Funder: Alabama Agricultural Experiment Station (AAES)

Mechanism: Young Investigator Award

Amount: $50,000

Role: PI

Dates: October 2015 – September 2017

Notes: This sequential, mixed-methods project's three key objectives were as follows: (1) to test whether the Psychological Maltreatment of Women Inventory could be modified and used to make statistically and theoretically meaningful distinctions (i.e., coercive control versus situational couple violence) within a sample of young adults (18-25 years) exposed to marital violence in their family of origin; and, (2) compare young adults exposed to coercive controlling versus situational couple marital violence within three key domains: a) family dynamics and overall home environment, b) indicators of overall health and well-being, and c) interpersonal relationship experiences (e.g., familial, peer, romantic).

Emerging Adults Exposure to Intimate Partner Violence in Their Family of Origin

Funder: Auburn University

Mechanism: Intramural Grants Program Level Seed Research

Amount: $6,000

Role: PI

Dates: February 2014 – February 2015

Notes: This qualitative project's key objectives were to: (1) assess whether young adults (19-25 years) could recall their marital violence exposure experiences beyond discrete acts of physical violence, with an emphasis on exposure to coercive control; and, (2) examine whether these young adults' interpersonal relationship (e.g., familial, peer, romantic) experiences varied depending on their distinct marital violence exposure experiences. Findings from this project were used to leverage funding from the AAES to conduct a larger, mixed-methods study, building upon this study's findings.
